WESTERN PACIFIC SEEKS PURCHASE OF RIGHTS OF WAY

The purchase of a right of way along the peninsula some hundred feet east of the line of the Bayshore boulevard is being negotiated at present by the Western Pacific railroad company. It is planned, according to reports, to run the rail line about four hundred feet east of the road in order to make it as accessable as possible to the deep water of the bay.

It is necessary that the company have all data relative to the proposed right of way for presentation to the railroad commission, according to H. P. Pitts of the right of way department of the Western Pacific.

Actual work preliminary to the presentation to the Interstate Commerce Commission of a request for a certificate of public benefit necessary to the construction of a railroad along the peninsula was begun in July by the Western Pacific, and is being rushed with all possible dispatch. Engineering crews are making a survey of the entire bay frontage of this county, ploting a route for the proposed line from Redwood City to San Francisco.

The link of the new road which will connect this city with San Francisco will be the first to be built in the thirteen million dollar expansion program of the Western Pacific. It will place that line in direct competition with the Southern Pacific in the passenger and freight carrying business on the peninsula. Later the line will be extended to meet the transcontinental line of the Western Pacific at Niles, and will then be continued through the San Joaquin valley to Bakersfield.

The connection from Redwood City to Niles, to give the all rail transcontinental route to San Francisco will be male shortly after the construction of the Redwood line. No definite plans have been announced for the exact route which will be followed by that line.

If the necessary sanction is granted by the commission, construction of the line to connect this city with San Francisco will begin immediately.

According to plans of the company, the San Francisco-Redwood City line will be twenty-five miles in length and will cost approximately $3,700,000. Officials of the company are not yet prepared to announce the exact location of the terminal which is to be constructed here, but it is believed that it will be somewhere near the extension of Broadway which is now under way and which will be completed within the next few months.

George Peterson, who has been conducting a jewelry and watch repairing business for some time in Yosemite valley, returned this week to his home here. Mrs. Peterson, who returned earlier in the season, and has been visiting with her sister, Mrs. R. E. Johnson in San Carlos, also returned to Redwood City to join her husband.

Meeting Held Here To Consider Election For Charter Freeholders

An important meeting for the future of Redwood City was held last evening in the auditorium of the central school on Broadway. The meeting was called for the purpose of selecting fifteen citizens of Redwood City for election as freeholders in the freeholder's election soon to be called for the purpose of drafting a new charter for Redwood City.

The fact was emphasized at the meeting that it was not called as a group of representatives of any group or organization but that it was composed of representatives of various organizations, and represented practically all lines of work and all sections of the city.

The meeting last night was only a preliminary and will probably be followed by a series of mass meetings in order that a full understanding of the charter problem may be secured by the people of the town.

Noted Pianist Pleases In Lecture Recital

Henry Cowell, composer and pianist, who has gained international distinction, gave the first of three lecture-recitals last Monday evening at the studio of Mrs. Barnes, 812 Brewster avenue in this city before a very interested audience.

The casual listener, fascinated by the unaccustomed sight of a pianist playing certain passages with the entire forearm or to sweep and swish across the strings of the piano, producing hitherto unknow effects, it must have appeared that he had made a clear break with tradition. Cowell's scientific study of accustics and over-tones, of which he will speak at his next lecture, enables him to produce effects never before used in music.

Cowell has appeared in most of the musical centers and great universities of Europe, as well as America. His music has been played b the leading orchestras of the country and he will start very soon for a tour of lecture-recitals which will take him to many eastern cities and to Europe, including Russia.

His next two lecture-recitals in Redwood City will be on Monday evenings, October 22 and 29, at the studio of Mrs. B. Barens, 812 Brewster avenue, to which the public may secure admission.

Drunken Driver Runs Into Dummy Policeman

The dummy policeman, that contraption on the corner of Broadway and the highway, was played by the leading orchestras of uiating traffic. It has since proved to be a better policeman than was expected, as it has added to its original functions that of stopping drunken drivers.

The last driver to be handed a tag by "Patented Pat" is William Martin, 22, a laborer who was acting as a chauffeur to a group of celebrants Wednesday night. Martin tried to rush Pat off his fett, but the "finest on the force" stood his ground like a true officer and smashed in the front of Martin's car.

Martin was booked at the jail on a charge of driving while intoxicated. The other members of the party including, Alra Jamison, 32; Charles McDonald, 30; and Catherine McDonald, 22, were booked at the jail on a charge of intoxication.

Y. M. C. A. Drive Progressing Here

he latest reports on the Y. M. C. A. Financial Campaign show that $250 is needed to reach the goal for Redwood City.

A note of appreciation on the part of the public for the work that is being done by the Y. M. C. A. has helped the solicitors very materially in their work.

Efforts are now being put forth to see those who were not at home or who were away during the campaign.

Workers are looking forward to having the balance needed well in hand before the end of the week

Belmont P.-T.A. To Hold Party

On Wednesday evening, October 31 the Belmont Parent Teacher Association will hold a Hallowe'en masque dance at the Belmont school. Music will be supplied by the Towne orchestra. A prize will be presented to the most original costume. There will also be door prizes. The affair is for the benefit of the P.-T. A.

SCHOOL CAST TO SHOW IN PLAY OF UNUSUAL VIVACITY

"Here's where I make my declaration of independence," shouts Starleigh Thomas, who plays the part of Henry in the Junior class play, to his Aunt Pricilla, played by Charlotte Rider. He does make his declaration and get his independence from his aunt and two sisters in the Junior class production of "One of the Family," which will be given in the high school auditorium, Saturday, October 27.

That's not all. By getting away from his family, Henry Adams is given a job by Martin Burke, a wealthy owner of a chain of dry goods stores in California.

Henry is assisted with a fine group of classmen in the rest of the cast. They are Enid Mays, Joyce Smith; Miss Pricilla Adams, Charlotte Rider; Eudele Murphy, Penelope Adams; Norma Campbell, Lucy Adams; Fred Kalenborn, George Adams; Helen Maninet, Irene; Walter Vander Kamp, Martin Burke; James Esneault, Frank Owens; Martha Cummings, Maggie.

Mrs. Bell Balcom, dramatic coach, is directing the production assisted by the Junior class advisor, Miss Helen Clark.

Tickets are on sale at Ryan's Drug Store and at the Sequoia high school. Fred Kalenborn is in charge of the ticket selling.

Three Kiwanis Clubs Hold Dinner Dance

One of the most enjoyable parties yet to be staged by the Redwood City Kiwanis Club was held Tuesday evening at the Menlo Park Golf and Country Club. The affair was a dinner dance to which members of the San Mateo-Burlingame and Palo Alto clubs and their ladies were guests.

The party was arranged by Edward T. Harrison, vice-president; Roscoe Stevens, district trustee and John Layng, president of the club. Following an excellent dinner, dancing and cards were enjoyed in the beautiful clubhouse of the club.

Among the honor guests at the party were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kisteman, the former secretary of the California - Nevada Kiwanis district; Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Frank C. Boren; Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. J. Warren Ayers. Roscoe Stevens acted as chairman and toastmaster of the evening.

Peninsula Radio Store Moves to Larger Store

The Peninsula Radio Service is moving this week into new quarters adjoining its present location on Broadway. The new store is more elaborate and better designed for display of the elegant sets handled by this firm.

The Peninsula Radio is the pioneer dealer in this section of the Majestic, all electric radio, and is also introducing the Eveready sets which combine the latest developments in radio. Roy Brown, proprietor of the business is inviting the public to his new store to inspect these new sets. The new store is completely equipped and has a service man to attend to an calls.

The Sonora radio, which is to be given as the Third prize in the Times-Gazette's campaign is also on display at the Peninsula Radio Service and can be seen at any time.

REDWOOD BOY HELD FOR AUTO THEFTS

Youth With Mania For Driving Cars Faces Fourth Charge

Louis Hess, Jr., 17-year-old son of a local mail carrier, was arrested Monday by Deputy Sheriff Quinlan, and is now in the San Francisco jail on a charge of auto theft. Young Hess is believed by officers to have been responsible for the theft of a number of automobiles during the past six weeks. When arrested he was driving a small car which was found to have been stolen in San Francisco.

On three previous occasions young Hess has been taken into custody for driving cars with ut the consent of their owners. It is believed by Sheriff J. J. McGrath that the young man is suffering from a mania and has no criminal tendencies. He does not seem able to resist a temptation to drive away any car which he finds standing unoccupied.

The arrest of Hess by Deputy Sheriff Quinlan followed a chase on the Alameda de las Pulgas, which ended when Hess' machine crashed into a private garage near the road, wrecking both machine and garage. Hess ran but was overtaken by the deputy sheriff.

Council Petitioned To Extend Widening On Lower Main Street

A petition signed by three owners of property on the block on Main street below the intersection of that street with Broadway asking that that block be widened in the same manner and at the same time as the other portion of the same street, was received by the city council Monday evening. The petition followed the reception by the board of a petition at the previous meeting in which property owners of Broadway and upper Main street asked that these streets be widened by removing three feet from the sidewalk on each side.

A Jensen was present when the former petition was received and asked the board to include the lower block of Main street in the widening program. This, the board informed him, could be done if a properly signed petition were presented at the next meeting.

Masons Plan Masque Party for Saturday

A masquerade and old clothes party will be given at the Masonic Temple on Main street tomorrow night by the club room committee of Redwood City Lodge F. & A. M. The committte which has charge of the arrangements for this event is headed by John E. Layng. A number of stunts are planned for this occasion.

Reception Given To Rev. and Mrs. C. E. Winning

Members and friends of the Methodist church met atthe church Wednesday evening and tendered to Rev. and Mrs. C. E. Winning a reception in honor of their return by the recent conference to this church.

A. M. Cuthbertson acted as chairman of the meeting. Both Mr. and Mrs. Winning were warmly greeted by their many friends. An interesting program was a feature of the evening and was greatly enjoyed.

Phone Company Improves Booths At Post Office

Manager L. C. Brown of the local phone exchange has been looking after some improvements in the phone service at the postoffice which have greatly added to the convenience to the public. In order to accommodate the number of persons who use the public phones, a second booth has been added. This also has added to the convenience of postoffice box-holders, as previously the persons waiting to get into the phone booth frequently blocked access to the postoffice boxes.

Both booths have been refinished to correspond to the postoffice which has just been repainted inside and out. Brown has also had a light installed over the directory for the use of patrons who are looking up numbers.

A marriage license was issued on Wednesday fo Mrs. Mary Ford and James Day. Both are well-known residents of this city. Mrs. Ford was the wife of the late John Ford. Day is an employe of the Beeger Tanning Co. The marriage will take place on Monday.

MRS. MARY SHINE PASSES AWAY AT PALO ALTO HOME

One by one the early pioneers of this section who blazed the way for the home builder of today and who left a record of achievement are rapidly passing onto the Valley of the Shadows. One of the oldest pioneers of this part of the state to answer the final summons is Mary Shine, who passed away at Palo Alto last Saturday evening. She was eighty-one years old, spending the greater part of those precious years in this community.

Mrs. Shine was born in Sydney, Australia, November 28, 1847. Her parents, Captain and Mrs. William Boyd, were born in Scotland, but came to Australia at an early age. The captain was the owner of vessels that plied from Australia to San Francisco. When she was two years old Mrs. Shine came with her parents on her father's vessel to San Francisco in 1849. As a girl she made several trips to her birthplace. While in Callo, Peru, on a voyage, Captain Boyd died. His wife returned with their child to San Francisco, where Mrs. Boyd disposed of her two vessels. She married A. P. Little and came to Woodside at an early date, settling on the lands known as the Thomas Knight place.

Mrs. Shine attended the West Union School until her mother moved to Searsville, then a thriving, throbbing center, when Mrs. Shine attended a boarding school at Mayfield, having as one of her schoolmates, Daniel Mullen of this city.

The deceased married Thomas Shine at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Burke of Canyada in 1863. The young couple boarded a stage coach at San Mateo for San Francisco, where the honeymoon was spent.

Returning to the peninsula, the young couple located at Searsville, buying a home on the old Sand Hill road, where three children were born to them. The Shines some years later bought the place known as the Hathaway estate, which was sold to the Spring Valley Water Co. in 1885, when that concern secured all the property in that vicinity and constructed the present Searsville Lake.

The Mezes tract was then purchased and improved and it was here that Thomas Shine passed away on April 4, 1900. Shortly after Mrs. Shine moved to Palo Alto, where she has since resided.

The funeral on Tuesday was largely attended by all the old friends who had known and loved the pioneer woman, whose many deeds of kindness and acts of friendship were known to all. Father Gleason spoke eloquently of her virtues and Christian charity in his lengthy eulogy. The Catholic church was crowded during the service.

Mrs. Shine saw many changes on the peninsula during her long residence and she delighted in reminiscent moods to tell of the stories, full of romance and love, of the days of long ago.

The following children survive Sister Annie of the Sisters of Charity, Mrs. Mary E. Byrne of Woodside, Mrs. Emma M. Gilcrest, Mrs. Laura F. Foley, Mrs. Theresa Elkins, Mrs. Mary Walker Nolte, William H., Edward V., George E., and Albert T. Shine. A brother, Malcolm B. Boyd, also survives as do a number of grandchildren and several great grandchildren.

Albert T. Shine is a prominent attorney of Oakland and is an inheritance tax appraiser of Alameda county.

State To Halt Misrepresentation By Fruit Dealers

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 18 (CNB) —The dishonest huckster who sells inferior fruits and vegetables from lug boxes labeled by growers of reputation and integrity, is afoul of the law.

The Department of Agriculture today announced a drive an these tricksters, operating from the Oregon line to San Diego, and who, for the most part, use only lugs labeled at distant points for display of their inferior wares.

While the practice is far from general among peddlers, it has been particularly active along highways the department observed in announcing that the vegetable and fruit standardization act, making it a misdemeanor to misrepresent produce, will be brought to bear to halt this offense.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Arends returned Wednesday from Echo Lake, where they spent the summer, and where they have built a summer home.

County Highways To be Patrolled During Nights

A night patrol of the county highways will be inaugurated next week, according to plans now under consideration by the board of supervisors. The board received the offer of Sheriff James J. McGrath at its meeting Monday that if a man could be detailed from the county traffic squad that he would supply a deputy sheriff for patrol. These two men will maintain a night patrol along the highway.

This plan has been referred to Captain James Logan of the traffic squad and he will report upon it at the next meeting of the board. If this appears feasible the night patrol will be commenced immediately thereafter.

Deputy Sheriff Lawrence Neri has been appointed to this position by Sheriff McGrath. The sheriff has stated that early in the evening a close watch will be kept on the Skyline boulevard, while later, when the theatre goers are returning from the city, the patrol will watch the highway and Bayshore road.

DeMolay Chapter Gets Charter

The presentation of a charter to Redwood Chapter, Order of De Molay took place last night before a large attendance of members of the order and many members of the Masonic lodge, which devoted its meeting to this event.

The presentation was made by Jesse Whithead, formerly grand scribe of the order. Ernest Werder, the first master councilor of the chapter, acted in that capacity last night.

Funeral Services Held For Mrs. M. DeMartini

Funeral services were held Wednesday at Mt. Carmel Catholic church for Mrs. Mary DeMartini, who passed away Monday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. G. F. Walker of San Carlos. A requiem solemn high mass was celebratod with Rev. Father Flannigan as officiating priest. With him on the altar was Rev. C. E. Kennedy of San Francisco and formerly pastor of Mt. Carmel church.

Services were followed by entombment in the family vault in Holy Cross cemetery at Colma.

Mrs. DeMartini, who was 70 years of age, was a native of Genoa, Italy. She came to this county when a small girl and for the past 42 years had been a resident of this city. Her husband, Paul DeMartini, passed away about five years ago. The family for many years made its home on Arguello street, but recently Mrs. DeMartini has been living with her daughter in San Carlos.

In addition to her daughter in San Carlos, Mrs. DeMartini is survived by another daughter, Mrs William Curran of this city and by three grandchildren, Miss Roberta Walker, Delbert Walker and Mrs. Sam H. Winklebleck.

Mrs. DeMartini was a member of the Gen. Geo. S. Evans Post Womens Relief Corps and of Robinhood Circle Neighbors of Woodcraft.

"Who Cares?" Subject Of Exchange Address

Col. T. W. Scott of the Salvation Army, was the speaker at the Tuesday evening meeting of the Redwood City Exchange Club. Col. Scott spoke on the work of the Salvation Army and his talk was much appreciated by the members of the club. He pictured dramatically the work of his organization among the "down-and-outers."

Lester Crow and George Montell were visitors here from the Palo Alto club, while President W. B. Langston and Guy Kennedy visited the Palo Alto club.

A. J. Stebenne was chairman of the Tuesday evening meeting.

Local Y. M. I. Team Defeats Castro Natives

Redwood City's Y. M. I. team came out victorious in a football tilt Sunday with the Castro Parlor N. S. G. W. team of San Francisco. The score at the end of the match was 18 to 0.

A game is scheduled for next Sunday for the Y. M. I. team and the Visitacion Athletic Club of San Francisco. The game will take place on the highschool grounds.

An enthusiastic meeting of the Smith-Robinson-Casserly club was held last Friday night at the Democratic headquarters at 90 Broadway. W. L. Miller is chairman of the local club and Mrs. A. F. Andersos is secretary.

ALL CANDIDATES WORKING HARD; MRS. TATE LEADS

All candidates are redoubling their efforts for the final drive of the Times-Gazette's great campaign. With the finish less than two weeks away and the special offer of $50.00 closing at 4 p. m. Saturday, October 20th, the intensity of the interest is very much in evidence.

Every conceivable method is being employed to reach subscribers by phone, through the mails, by automobile and by house-to-house canvass.

Those who are out to win the Nash Standard Six Sedan fully euipped, or the Whippet Coach, are putting in every moment of their time.

Today Mrs. A. W. Tate, who only entered the contest about ten days ago is leading all the candidates. Miss Oneta is second. Miss Josephine Steinberg is third, Mrs. W. C. Knapp is fourth, and Miss Myra Kurtz is fifth. Only a few votes separate the leaders. Mrs. Davis is a close third in Redwood City.

Mrs. Powell, Miss Stebenne, Mrs Holmes, Miss Laura Smith, Miss Shine and Mrs. Hogavoll have gained many votes since last week. Joe Cals is back in the contest. The friends of Mrs. J. P. Anderson have given her many votes as a start.

Extra Votes

The most votes before the close of the campaign will be given this week. Each candidate who turns in as much as $60.00 will receive a Prize Ballot for 100,000 extra votes, beside the regular offer of 300,000 extra votes for $60.00. $75.00 will bring candidates 400,000 extra votes and $100.00 in subscriptions will give 600,000 extra votes. Counting the 100,000 extra votes on $60.00, a candidate may secure 700,000 extra votes on $100,000 by next Wednesday, the 24th at 2 p. m.

Every $5.00 over $100.00 will bring candidates 50,000 extra votes.

In addition to the above all subscriptions for more than two years up to six years will count double votes until Saturday, October 27th at 4 p. m. This will include all subscritions from three to six years already turned in so no votes will be lost by having turned them in previously.

Remember a three-year subscription will give 40,000 votes; four years, 60,000 votes; five years, 80,000 votes; and six years, 100,000 votes if new, or half as many if renewal.

Subscribers who have aready paid one or two years, may now extend their subscritpions and candidates will receive the double votes.

No extra votes will be given the last three days of the contest, excepting the extra votes on amounts

NOTICE

All candidates who are not working for themselves by next Wednesday will be dropped from the list. This is only fair to the workers and to the paper as many people are hoding their subscriptions for certain candidates in case they want them. If they do not get them, no one will unless the non-workers are removed from the list. Remember, if you have been depending upon your friends to do all your work and taking no interest in the campaign yourself, your name will not appear in the list after today.

Closing Rules

The closing rules of the campaign will be published next week. Read every word, and do not forget that the campaign closes, Wednesday, October 31st. The time is short, just twelve days but in that time the candidates are going to win $3,000.00.

One of the chief speakers at the teachers' institute held at Bridgeport, Mono county, last week was Roy W. Cloud of this city, secretary of the California State Teachers' Association. The local man has a well-earned reputation as a speaker which makes his presense at all gatherings of educators sought after. He has spoken in every county in the state and many eastern points.

Mrs. Minnie Cleland of the Marinella Beauty Shop spent several days this week visiting friends in San Francisco.

"I know I Should, but--"

Everyone knows he should save money—yet there are thousands of people who never get to it!

Acquiring this vitally important habit of thrift is not a matter of the size of income. It depends solely upon one's ability to make up his mind.

Diet Problem of Athletes

"I SOLVED the diet problem of athletes by changing the order of courses at meals," says Dr. Clarence Spears, professor of football and doctor of medicine at the University of Minnesota. "Instead of having the salad served late in the meal, I have it served first. "When my players sit down at the table they find a salad of green stuffs awaiting them. There is also plenty of celery.

Coach Clarence Spears.

"They are hungry. The meal, in compliance with previous arrangements, is slow in starting. The players, waiting for the service to begin, get busy with the salad. By the time the soup is served, the salads and celery have been consumed. We see to it that the meal does not start before they have been eaten.

"After the salad, celery and soup are finished, the player has had much of his appetite satisfied. He will not overeat; and, due to the late start, which prompted him to devour his salad and celery, he will have partaken of the kind of food we want him to eat.

"I decided on this plan after watching athletes in training for a number of years. Many of them ignored their salads when served with meat orders, preferring two and three orders of meat to a dish of salad; but when the player is hungry, and there is nothing to eat but salad and celery, he will gladly consume what is before him and what we want him to eat."

Which may, or may not, be one reason for the power of Minnesota's football eleven, comments H. G. Salsinger in the Detroit News.

Captaincy at Wisconsin Held by Rube E. Wagner

The football captaincy at Wisconsin this fall rests upon the shoulders of a young man who has overcome countless obstacles in an effort to acquire a college education. Success has rewarded him in all of his undertakings as a Badger student, until now, as a senior, Rube E. Wagner of St. Paul finds himself a leader in the student life of Wisconsin.

For two years Wagner has played in the line on Cardinal elevens. Last fall he was rated as one of the best tackles in the Middle West. Rube has confined his activities entirely to athletics. In the spring of the year he competes on the track team, specializing in the shotput and discus throw.

Wagner is preparing to become an athletic coach after graduation. Next year he will complete his work in the four-year course in physical education. He is an excellent student, too, his achievements at Wisconsin being particularly outstanding because he has been entirely self-supporting since his enrollment as a freshman.

He is employed at a Madison hotel as a waiter. This work, together with other miscellaneous jobs, provides for his living. Summer vacations are not for pleasure as far as Wagner is concerned, for he is busy then earning money to care for his school expenses.

No Change of Navy Grid Trip to Pacific Coast

Because of the stiff program already mapped out for Naval academy football team it would not be possible to stage a Christmas-day gridiron game with the University of Southern California at Los Angeles, says Commander Jonas H. Ingram, director of athletics at the Naval academy.

Representatives of the California institution have conferred with navy authorities looking to a regular contract which would bring the two schools together annually for an intersectional clash, but Naval academy athletic officials feel that such a contest would work a hardship on the Midshipmen, who already face several strong teams in the fall.

In addition, the trip West would take the sailors away from their work and cause an extended training period which naval authorities have said could not be warranted this year, at least.

Army Ignores Navy

Chances for a resumption of the Army-Navy football relations in 1929 were eliminated when the military academy announced its 1929 schedule without mention of the Navy.

The most important addition to the schedule is the University of Illinois. A two-year agreement has been entered whereby the Illini go to West Point next year and the cadets go to Illinois the year afterward.

Also Plays Football

Kid Purdy, diminutive little outfielder purchased by the Cincinnati Reds from Seattle, demonstrated before pulling a muscle in his leg during the closing days of last season, that he is made of real big league timber. Sawed off though he may be, he surely can go and cut down hits in the outfield, to say nothing of his ability at the plate. Purdy, after toiling on the diamond in the summer, continues his athletic activities in the fall playing football.

ONLY ONE FROSH GAME AT PENNSY

New Policy in Freshman Athletics This Fall.

The University of Pennsylvania inaugurated a new policy in freshman athletics this fall when the gridiron schedule of the first-year men was limited to one contest, with the Cornell Frosh, on November 10.

In the past, first-year teams have played a complete schedule of from four to six games with other freshman college teams and with leading preparatory schools. One or more of the games were played away from home with the result that the yearlings were forced to be absent from classes.

Louis A. Young, head coach of the varsity team, has always been a strong advocate of freshmen devoting all their time to study. It has been his belief that the excitement of approaching games has cast a shadow over studies in the life of freshman football players, resulting in conditions and other scholastic worries that frequently caused the loss of star athletes.

This season the yearlings are working out with the varsity on Franklin field, imbibing the system they must play in their sophomore and subsequent years. The experience gained from contact with the varsity should prove invaluable to the first-year men.

Freshman teams have held several scrimmages a year with the regulars in the past, but this year they will have workouts against the upper classmen almost every day.

Captain Butler, who two years ago was placed on a second All-American team, is the head coach of the yearlings this season. He will coach the linemen and will be assisted by Alfred Langdon and Al Kreuz. Butler and Langdon were members of the coaching staff last season, while Kreus, a star several seasons ago, will be making his debut as a tutor.

Barney Berlinger, member of the United States Olympic team, who played tackle for the yearlings last season, is among the end candidates. His speed and size should make him an ideal wing man. Last fall he displayed more than average ability on the gridiron.

Just Another Yarn on Rube Waddell

When Rube Waddell was pitching for Minneapolis, Joe Cantillon, his manager, let him off one day to go fishing in Minnetonka. Waddell came in with a fine string of bass and presented them to Cantillon. A month later Cantillon got a bill from a local fish dealer which read:

"J. Cantillon, Dr.

"Eight bass . . . $1.60."

"Cheap enough," the baseball man told the fish dealer, "but I never bought any bass."

"Oh," explained the latter, "that's a string Rube Waddell bought here and charged to you."

Boston One-Legged Golf "Bug" Often Breaks 100

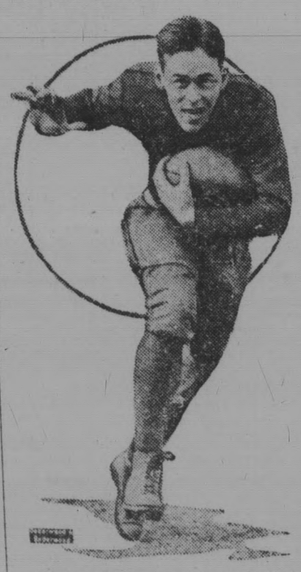
Though he has but one leg, Eddie Gisburne, radio announcer at station WEEI, Boston, has learned to play golf well enough to break 100 regularly, a score not reached by many physically perfect duffers.

Gisburne lost his leg while serving with American forces at Vera Cruz in 1914.

In taking up golf he had to conquer the perplexing problem of acquiring a swing. He now hits a tee shot for 180 yards and can play iron and putt shots as well as the average two-legged golfer.

The curious part of Gisburne's game is that he can play a full wood shot and maintain his balance.

Best Forward Passer



Walter Holmer, one of the best forward passers in the Middle West and an excellent open field runner, who will captain Northwestern's football eleven this fall. The Purple leader is in his old position at fullback. He will also be used for running the ends and in plays which call for dashes inside or outside the tackles.

Pirates Buy Two

The purchase of Catcher Roy Spencer from the Indianapolis club of the American association and the signing of Pitcher Ralph Erickson, left-handed twirler, who formerly pitched for the University of Idaho Nine, is announced by the Pittsburgh National league club officials.

Spencer caught for the Pirates in 1925, 1926 and 1927, but was released outright to Indianapolis last winter. Erickson played with the Boise club of the Utah-Idaho league.

Clean Kidneys By Drinking Lots of Water

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys If Bladder Bothers or Back Hurts

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders.

Aviator's Good Work

Joseph Salzman, veteran aviator and instructor, and Oscar Rothlin, a youth who hopes some day to be a full-fledged pilot, took off from the San Francisco airport on an instruction hop. Just after the plane had left the ground it was discovered that the landing gear had become broken. Salzman ordered young Rothlin to take the controls while he climbed out on the wing to repair the landing gear. After more than an hour's work, with the aid of a safety belt, shoelaces and a piece of wire, the gear was repaired so well that a perfect landing was made when the plane descended.

WHAT DR. CALDWELL LEARNED IN 47 YEARS PRACTICE

A physician watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the system and in not habit forming. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for anybody's system. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly.

Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to the nearest druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

A Western Man As President

THE advantage to California in having a Western man elected president of the United States is, we fear, not fully realized by our people.

Herbert Hoover, a Californian, is the first nominee of the Republican party, ever to have been chosen from the west, and to have been made its unanimous choice for the presidency.

California is dependent on a Protective Tariff, on Reclamation Work, on Mining and on Foreign Trade development, which are controlled by our National Government and also on a Congress and a President who understand our problems and needs for its proper development and who are in sympathy with them.

California in the past has unjustly suffered by a lack of knowledge of, and sympathy with, our needs on the part of eastern representatives, many of whom have never been west of the Rocky Mountains.

We now have in Herbert Hoover a man remarkably equipped to be president, and who understands our needs and is in sympathy with them, and will be of inestimable value in assisting California attain her glorious destiny.

Herbert Hoover is of the peninsula, and we, as a matter of local pride and duty to our state, should go down to the South land with an overwhelmingly majority for Hoover and Curtis, and thereby demonstrate that we of Central California appreciate the honor conferred on us by the Republican Party in unanimously choosing from our state their standard bearer, for the high office of president of the United States.

FOREIGN TRADE

AT the beginning of the Republican administration, Herbert Hoover took charge of the Department of Commerce and was confronted with total disorganization of our world trade, due to the war and the movement of commodities between all nations was at least 20 per cent less than before the war.

He immediately organized a campaign to build up the exports of the products of American Labor and of the American farm. The Department of Commerce was reorganized on a larger scale than had ever been attempted or accomplished by any nation in the world, and it expanded our foreign trade in all directions.

The applications for assistance by exporters to the department have increased in the past seven years from 500 daily to 10,000 daily. Our exports were increased by over one billion dollars during that time. An increase of 41 per cent since 1922, and an increase of 58 per cent over pre-war exports

This in the face of the fact that the exports of all other countries increased only 10 per cent over pre war exports during the same time.

It was no accident that brought these results. It was the efficient work of Herbert Hoover in the Department of Commerce.

More than two million families earn their living in the Unted States today, producing goods that we export; and one million families, in manufacturing of raw material which we import in exchange for our products.

This means wages for our workmen, and profits for our farmers and merchants.

Not to be Overlooked

REPUBLICANS, in their enthusiasm for the nominee for the presidency, should not forget the candidates for Congress. Mr. Hoover must have a majority of congress to put over his policies, if elected. It therefore is incumbent on every republican to support the republican nominees for congress. Senator Johnson is practically elected for his opposition is nil. Congressman Free is opposed by Mrs. Cecelia Casserly, a woman of wealth and position, who has ambition to go to Washington and will put up a stiff fight. While it is true that her chances of election are slim, it nevertheless behooves every republican to be on his guard and vote and work for the re-election of Arthur M. Free. Hoover needs him. He is an experienced and seasoned legislator who has influence at the national capitol and is in a position to be of service to his constituents. Mr. Free is an alert and capable official. Keep him at his post. Re-elect him by an overwhelming majority so that he may aid Hoover in carrying out his pledges to the people in enacting useful laws.

"No man will say that any Immigration or Tariff law is perfect. We welcome our new immigrant citizens and their great contrbution to our Nation; we seek only to protect them equally with those already here."—Herbert Hoover.

R. C. Holmquist is putting down a well on the Frank Macchi property on the outskirts of town.

The first anniversary of the Women of Woodcraft will be observed Monday evening at 8:30. The officers and members are requested to meet at 7:30.

Contractor T. C. Rice is laying a cement sidewalk on the east side of the grammar school. A much needed improvement.

At the regular meeting of the Eastern Stars last Monday night two new members, Miss Eva Cook and Miss Bee Fox were initiated. Several other new members will be taken in during the next few weeks.

On the afternoon of the 9th, while watching the actions of an experiment in the chemical laboratory, Frank Thompson was severely cut in the face as the result of an explosion.

Robert S. Chatham, sheriff-elect of San Mateo county, has moved to the coastside and will conduct a cattle ranch near Pescadero.

Prof. Fait, who is running a three night engagement at the Alhambra, played to very good houses on Thursday night and last, and indications point to an even larger attendance tonight. The professor is a clever hypnotist and does some very creditable turns. In the afternoon he suspends the functions of organs in his daughter's body and puts her in a deep sleep from which she awaked about 9 o'clock and does some remarkable and laughable stunts.

The Southern Pacific Co. began Monday to run trains on its newly constructed double tracks between San Jose and San Bruno, a distance of 39 miles, which, with the stretch between the city and San Bruno, gives the company a double way down the coast of 51 miles.

Railroads Reduce Fares For Reno Celebration

Reduced railroad fares from San Francisco, Modesto, Floriston and Tehama to Reno, Nevada, including branch lines and intermediate points, will be put into effect by the Southern Pacific, Western Pacific and Tidewater Southern railways for the Sixth Annual Potato and Apple Show to be held there October 26 and 27.

A special rate of one and one-half fare for the roundtrip will be granted by the railroads, according to a joint announcement issued this week. Tickets will be good until midnight of October 29.

The Reno affair will also celebrate the annual home coming day of the University of Nevada.

J. H. Cororan Appointed Head of Telephone Company

From office boy to general manager is the story surrounding the appointment yesterday of J. H. Corcoran as general manager of The Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company for northern California and Nevada. The appointment is announced by N. R. Powley, operating vice-president.

As directing head of 10,000 men and women in this area, including thousands of operators, Corcoran has been general traffic manager since 1920. His 41 years of telephone experience, make him unusually well qualified to handle the problems resulting from the immense telephone growth of this section. He succeeds R. A. Gantt,, whose resignation as general manager was also announced this week.

Gantt has become vice-president of the Postal Telegrah and Cable Corporation, recently purchased by the International Tele- and Telegraph Company, a company in which the Bell System has no financial interest.

THOMAS, who is now the beneficiary as such assignee under the terms of said deed of trust and the holder and owner of said deed of trust and said indebtedness secured thereby; and

WHEREAS, said grantors had made default in the payment of said promissory note, and had defaulted under the terms of said deed of trust and note; and

WHEREAS, said WILLIAM A. THOMAS, as such beneficiary, did heretofore, and pursuant to the terms of said deed of trust on the 5th day of July, 1928, record in the office of the County Recorder of San Mateo County, in Volume 357 of Official Records, page 368, his notice of such default and breach by said grantors and of his election to sell or cause to be sold the real property in said deed of trust described, and hereinafter described, to satisfy the obligations of said deed of trust, reference to which said notice and the record thereof is hereby made; and

WHEREAS, WILLIAM A. THOMAS, as such beneficiary and as owner and holder of said note and deed of trust and the obligations represented thereby, did heretofore demand of the undersigned, as such trustee, to forthwith proceed to sell the property covered by said deed of trust and not theretofore reconveyed.

NOW, THEREFORE, said CALIFORNIA PACIFIC TITLE & TRUST COMPANY, as such trustee, pursuant to said demand and in accordance with the terms and authority of said deed of trust, hereby gives notice that on Thursday, the 8th day of November 1928, at the hour of 11 o'clock A. M. of said day, at the front door of the County Court House of the County of San Mateo, State of California, in the City of Redwood City, San Mateo County, California, it, as such trustee as aforesaid, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder for cash the hereinafter described real property, or such part thereof as will be necessary to satisfy the objects in said deed of trust provided. All bids and payments for said property shall be made in gold coin of the United States at the time of said sale. The property to be sold is the property described in said deed of trust and not heretofore reconveyed, and is situated in the Town of Atherton, County of San Mateo, State of California, described as follows:

Lot 23, as designated on the map entitled, "Map of the Subdivision of the Polhemus Tract in the Rancho de las Pulgas, near Menlo Park and the Leland Stanford Jr. University," which map was filed in the office of the Recorder of the County of San Mateo, State of California, on August 29, 1891, in liber "C" of Maps at page 64, and a copy entered in liber 2 of Maps at page 35.

Dated: October 8th, 1928.

INCREASED REVENUE EXPECTED FROM GASOLINE TAX

County's Share To Be $58,000 It Is Estimated

By CLEM WHITAKER

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 18 (CNB)—San Mateo county may assume the pleased expression of an old man's darling, confident there is a Santa Claus today, as she awaits a generous extra gift from the state government this Christmas.

It's supposed to be a deep secret, but the state has had a good year in more ways than one, and San Mateo, dutiful daughter is expected to profit by an approximate 10 per cent increase in gas tax apportionment when State Controller Ray L. Riley, in the role of Santa gets around to slicing that melonnew 58 ways.

With San Mateo county the recipient of $52,608 as its share of the two-cent gasoline tax collected by the state from October 1, last year to March 31, the county may anticipate with reasonable surety receipt of $58,000 as its portion for the last half of the fiscal year, according to all indications gleaned from official sources and based upon the tremendous increase in use of motor vehicle fuel during the past six months.

Time was, in 1926, when the motor vehicle fuel tax had been in operation but three years that the State Board of Equalization felt the limit was nearing the mushroom growth of state revenues from this source, and that $18,000,000 so raised that year might be regarded as a high level for a few years.

The following year showed a tremendous gain, however, and in the first quarter of 1928, collections ran to $7,500,000, the actual gain in gasoline used over the corresponding period in 1927, being 14.76 per cent.

Simultaneously with that showing, the Equalization Board announced that its earlier estimate of $32,000,000 as California's 1928 gas tax revenue was conservative, and increase of the total for the second quarter of the year to nearly $8,500,000 proved this admission.

The yearly rate of gain estimated at 12.3 percent, may again be shattered by January 1 next year, and if this proves to be the case, the 50 per cent of the total two-cent tax revenues will be increased in proportion.

Paving Contracts Awarded by Board

The Redwood City council at its regular meeting Monday night awarded two contracts for street paving. One was let to the Peninsula Paving Co. for paving portions of Adams, Hudson, Madison and Vera avenues. The other was let to U. B. Lee for paving a portion of Jefferson avenue.

The bid of the Peninsula Paving Co. for the work on Adams and other streets was for $36,118. Other bids received for this work were from the Union Paving Co. for $39,895.63 and from Hanrahan & Co. for $37,757.47.

Lee's bid for the Jefferson avenue work was $7,810.03. The only other bid received on this work was from W. A. Dontanville for $7,825.26. The bids were figured by City Engineer Dimmitt and the contracts awarded to the lowest bidder in both cases.

A Communication

Redwool City, California
October 10, 1928

Mr. John Isaac,
Times-Gazette,
Redwood City, California.
Dear Sir:

It has been called to our attention certain rumors prevalent in Redwood City pertaining to membership elegibility in the Redwood City Promotion Association which are not based on facts. I wish at this time to make it clear to every one, our policy on membership.

The Redwood City Promotion Association was organized to protect and work as an organized body for the best interests of Redwood City and immediate vicinity, therefore every resident within Redwood City and immediate vicinity is eligible to become a member. Any resident desiring membership fills out a membership application card which in turn is approved by the membership committee, then voted upon by the membership.

Our dues are $1.00 per year payable quarterly, semi-annually or annually. Upon payment of dues a membership card is issued which entitles the holder to all voting and other privileges of active membership.

We, however, desire to have anyone whether active member or not and regardless where they live, come to our meetings and bring their community problems, which we are always ready to take action on after consideration in open meeting as to their merits.

Hoping this will enlighten every reader of your newspaper and lead them to feel that all are welcome to participate in our meetings for a common good, I remain,

Yours very truly,
E. R. McNEE,
Secretary

Magruder Loses Fight To Keep Lumber Yard

E. W. Magruder, local real estate and lumber dealer was given 90 days in which to move a lumber yard now maintained by him on Vera avenue. This was the action of the city council at its meeting Monday night. The decision by the council was taken following the reception of a report by the Redwood City planning commission recommending that a petition by Magruder to have his property classed as business property be denied. A protest from a number of residents of the district was also received by the board and read by the city clerk.

The action by the board on Monday was the final act in a long controversy which inclued a test of the city's zoning ordinance in the superior court before the late Judge Hudner and an appeal to the appellate court in both of which cases the validity of the ordinance was upheld.

San Francisco Men Attend Convention of Piggly Wiggly Stores

W. N. Haraway, president and H. E. Moore, general manager of the local Piggly Wiggly Company were in Memphis attending the National Convention of Piggly Wiggly Operators, which was held October 8th and 9th at the Hotel Peabody.

This is a yearly affair where operators from all over the United States gather to discuss ways and means of improving their service to the public. At this meeting various phases of merchandising were discussed, so that the newest products and the best foodstuffs will be procured the coming year for distribution through local stores.

"The Piggly Wiggly Convention is a mighty important event in the business life of our community, said Mr. Moore, "because everyone is interested in getting the best food at the best prices, and with the Piggly Wiggly operators from all over the United States gathered to discuss these ideas, many plans are made to co-operate with manufacturers, producers and farmers, so that their products are obtained direct, without the intervention of middlemen to raise the cost to local people.

"Piggly Wiggly is striving to reduce the cost of living and it's record in this city proves that it's efforts are having results," said Mr. Moore.

Piggly Wiggly started in Memphis 12 years ago, as the basis of an idea to properly serve the public with groceries, through a system of self-service that eliminated much expense and gave the customer the privilege of selecting what merchandise she required direct from the shelves. From this small beginning Piggly Wiggly has spread until today there are stores serving practically all important centers of population, and plans are being completed for expansion into European countries and South America.

National Piggly Wiggly Week was celebrated with a great advertising campaign in metropolitan newspapers and in country newspapers throughout the territory served by stores. There were also campaigns in national magazines featuring this event.

"The Piggly Wiggly of San Francisco, operating in San Francisco and San aMteo counties are now operating thirty-eight stores," stated Mr. Moore. He further stated that their expansion and program outlines the opening of many more stores in the very near future.

Popular Young Couple Married Here Monday

Mt. Carmel Catholic church was the scene Monday of a pretty wedding officiated at by the Reverend Father Flannigan, when Miss Valda Stebenne became the bride of Joseph F. Britschgi. The ceremony was witnessed by a large group of friends and relatives of both of the young people who are both members of well-known families of this city.

The bride was attended by Annie Maguire as bridesmaid, while her sister, Miss Lois Stebenne, acted as maid of honor. Leonard Britschgi, cousin of the groom, was best man. Francis, Carl and Leonard Britschgi acted as ushers.

Following the wedding the guests gathered at the home of the bride's parents on Hudson street for a wedding breakfast after which the young people left on a week's honeymoon.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Stebenne. She is a recent graduate of the Sequoia Union High School, and a young lady of a pleasing and accomplished personality. Since her graduation she has been assisting her father in his law office.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Britschgi of Semi-Circle road, just south of Redwood City, and is engaged in the garage business. During his high school days he distinguished himself in athletics and was a star performer on both basketball and baseball teams.

The young people will soon erect a house in Redwood Highland and make their home in this city.

Marked Increase Shown in Enrollment In Teachers' Colleges

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 18 (CNB)—The future supply of school teachers is assured today with the enrollment this fall in the seven teachers' colleges showing an increase of ten to twelve per cent average over last spring, according to a statement issued today by A. R. Heron, director of finance

With the state's fiscal officer determined to hold every state institution to an increase of not more than 7 per cent in the next biennium and the presidents of the state teachers' colleges asking an increase of 23.19 per cent, a brisk battle for financing the education of more teachers, seems imminent

Ever Notice the Back of Your Neck?

YOU can't tell how badly you need a hair cut just by looking in the mirror front-face! It's the back of your head that tells the story. That's why we say: "If you saw the back of your neck as often as the rest of the world does, you'd never forget that haircut every ten days."

And here's a tip:—the next time you get a haircut in our super-service shop, ask for an application of Pitch's La Poma hair-dressing afterward. We know of nothing so excellent for assisting the hair to lie smooth and nothing else which increases its gloss so amazingly. How about doing it today?

The Piggly Wiggly chain stores has leased one of the stores in the new Duff building for a period of five years and will open the place about the first of December.

Councilman W. E. Dale is quite ill at his home on Pine street. His friends hope to see him about in a few days.

Mrs. Gertrude Carroll has returned from Cincinnatti, Ohio. She will spend the winter at her estate recently purchased on the Alameda. Her prize hounds won many big stakes during the summer in the east.

Jigg's Corner is the scene of a rummage sale this week. The sale will conclude today. The proceeds will go to the Stanford Convalescent Home, Mrs. A. E. Roth, president. Large crowds are attending the sale and are taking away big bargains.

The ladies of the National Council of Catholic Women will hold a food sale tomorrow, Saturday, October 20, in the Slinger building adjoining the postoffice. Home made cakes, pies and other delicacies will be offered for sale. A Thanksgiving turkey will be given away. Come and secure your bird for the national day. Sale will continue throughout the day.

The State Railroad Commission is here all week taking testimony in the water rate case. The Bear Gulch Water Company is seeking to raise its rates and is opposed by the water users. City Attorney Whitworth is putting up a stiff fight for Menlo Park, while Attorney Reddington is watching the interests of Atherton. The commission may be here for several days.

J. Chamberlain has been appointed street superintendent. He will have charge of the street sweeping.

On Saturday evening, October 20th, the Native Sons and Native Daughters will hold a dance in the Blue Moon Dance Hall in Menlo Park. The joint committee in charge of the dance has secured an orchestra from Stanford University and is certain that the music will be the best. All who care to are invited to attend this dance which is one of a series to be given during the winter months

The town council met in regular session Tuesday evening. All present with the exception of W. E. Dale, who is confined to his home

City Attorney Sherman reported that all bail money should be in the keeping of the city judge and not with the chief of police. This matter was up for discussion at the last meeting and it was referred to the city attorney for a report.

City Engineer Kneese was present and was asked to give his opinion regarding street improvements, the question having been argued at some length at the last meeting of the council. The engineer stated that it would be unwise to expend funds in temporary work, as it would be expensive in the end. He strongly urged the council to make permanent improvements, improvements that the people would be proud of and that would last for a long time. He thought that proceedings for contempated work should be started at once so that the improvement would begin early in the spring.

The application of the property owners on Cambridge street fo permission to do temporary improvements was dismissed without prejudice.

Blake brought up the question of numbering the houses, change the duplication of street names and to secure maps and plats of the city. On his motion, seconded by Walker, the city engineer, was authorized to do this work the cost of which is not to exceed the sum of $200.00.

Commissioner Walker suggested that the clerk write the Southern Pacific Company to urge the repairing of the company's property around the station. The clerk was authorized to notify the company, in the hope that work would be started soon.

On motion of Walker, seconded by Blake, the report of the planning commission submitted at the last meeting of the council was laid on the table to be acted on later and also to give the members time to read it.

On motion of Walker, seconded by Blake, the salary of th city judge was ordered raised from $25 a month to $50 a month. The city attorney asked that the matter go over unil the next meeting, in order that he might investigate and the request was granted.

Ordinance No. 37 was passed and adopted. This ordinance regulates the sale of milk and cream and provides for the appointment of an inspector.

Building Inspector Smith presented plans and specifications for the construction of an apartment house on Stanford boulevard. It is to be a one-story structure with court and containing 22 small apartments. The builder, J. G. Genges, was present and stated that similar apartments were being erected in Los Angeles and Santa Barbara. Mayor Weeden thought that the plans were not in accordance with the state housisg act. Ellis thought the matter should be investigated before any action was taken. The question of a zoning ordinance was brought up in the discussion, the city attorney claiming that the plans should be in tune with the planning ordinance. It was thought that the tentative ordinance covers the point at issue. At the suggestion of the mayor the plans and secifications were ordered continued until the next meeting. The proposed structure is to cost $20,000.00.

No further business apeparing the council adjourned to October 30th.

Harry Lusk is constructing a yacht for his private use in the Palo Alto harbor this winter. His friends are looking forward to pleasurable jaunts down the bay during the coming moonlight nights.

G. E. Blair, the real estate operator and contracting painter, is recovering from a severe illness. It was thought he would have to answer the final summons but he was not perturbed. He only murmured the hymn, "When the Roll Is Calley Away Up Yonder, I'll Be There."

The Duff building that was to have three stores, has been changed so that only two stores will be on the lower floor. A large chain store has leased the largest room for a period of five years. Hence the change in arrangements.

The Native Sons will give a dance in the Blue Moon hall tomorrow evening that will be the big event of the season. Good music and attractive girl dancers are sure to lure a big attendance.

Two large rattlesnakes were killed in the Felton Gables tract last week by the caretaker who knew the traits of the reptiles. After dispatching one he waited for the mate to show up. It is a well-known fact that where one rattler is located, the mate is close by. Sure enough in a short time the other snake appeared and was killed. It had twelve rattles, while the other had thirteen. The rattlers were the first ever killed in Menlo Park for that snake does not thrive here. The "oldest inhabitant" cannot remember when one was seen here. Of course this story has no connection with a still that was knocked over by the local police in that vicinity.

The Menlo Park Parent Teachers Association met at the Central School Friday, October 12, 1928, at 2:30 o'clock p. m.

It as voted to pay the balance due on the cello which the P.-T. A. was buying and then turn the instrument over to the school for the orchestra.

The orchestra, which was sponsored and financed by the P.-T. A. has proved to be a splendid addition to the school and the expense of maintaining it has this year been assumed by the school trustees. The graduating class of 1928 took quite a number of the members of the orchestra so any parents who may be interested in starting their children in the beginner's class may do so at this time.

The P.-T. A is also very pleased to state that Manual Training has been introduced in the school this year. This is another project which the P.-T. A has sponsored.

During the next month a membership drive will be made and at the next meeting to be held November 9th, 1128, a social hour will be spent in order that the new members may be welcomed and get acquainted with other parents and the teachers. Light refreshments will be served.

As everyone attending the card party given by the P.-T. A. October 5 seemed to have such a delightful evening, it was decided to give a series of card parties in the very near future under the direction of Mrs. S. F. Teypper. A new auditorium is to be added to the school and the P. T. A. is working to raise funds for such furnishings as they may need.

The Home section will meet Monday evening, October 15th at the home of Mrs. Aabel on Crane avenue. A box for the Students' Aid Shop will be fixed up at that time.

A delightful program was put on under the direction of Miss Ruth Bracesco, chairman of the music committee.

Miss Victoria Rousell, president of the 17th district, was present and gave a very interesting talk on Parental Education. She also gave a short talk to the chairmen of the different committees and outlined the program of the district for the year.

One of the earliest votes cast in the presidential election was that of Charles C. McCracken, an official of Ohio State University, who prepared his ballot in the office of Frank S. Becker, Menlo Park Notary Public, on October 16th. According to the Ohio law, absentee voters may prepare their ballots in the presence of notaries, the latter being charged with the duty of forwarding the same to the proper election official.

Beginning on October 31st, the Menlo Park Masonic Temple Association will hold card parties, dances, entertainments, masque balls at regular intervals. A card party is scheduled for October 31, and a Christmas Christmas party for December 19th. All of these affairs will be invitational.

general body were to bed, death would ensue at fter death the alkalinity
dy is overwhelmed by the acids generated in the tissues. The processes of life in the human body are maintained on the basis of alkaline reactions. The only exception to this is found in the hydrochloric acid of normal gastric juice. As a rule urine is also acid, but this is an exception and of no significance.

There are many disorders of the body in which a diminution of the normal alkalinity takes place. The public not knowing physiologic facts call this condition "acidity," but it is not that. Instead, it is merely a diminution of the normal alkaline as in health, so the term "acidity," excepting as it pertains to the stomach, is incorrect. "Lowering of the normal alkalinity" is the term that should be used instead.

The alkaline balance of health is maintained by substances in the food and drink. These may be present in acid foods and fluids that when oxidized in the body, develop strongly alkaline products. If blue litmus paper is put on a freshly cut apple or orange, grape fruit or lemon juice, it will turn red, showing that they are acid in reaction. If, however, these substances be oxidized, such as burnt in a Bunsen flame, the ash will be strongly alkaline. Thus the malic acid of the apple and the citric acid of the oranges, grape fruit or lemons really increase the alkalinity of the body by adding to the so-called alkaline reserve in the tissues. It follows, therefore, that in addition to the large amount of vitamins present in fruits and fruit juices, these substances are imortant articles of diet to keep the body in normal alkalinity—which means health.

Many of the vegetables are also high in alkaline production. Meat, fish, poultry, cheese and eggs tend toward diminishing it. The latter foods, should not, however, be eliminated entirely because the nitrogen they contain is most essential in maintaining the processes of life in the cells of the body. The sugars, especially those found naturally in food and not the common table sugar, are necessary for heat production. In this the starches are of equal value. But, for proper reaction and maintain normal chemistry, the fruits, berries and the citrus fruits especially are important. In these it is now believed that while organe juice is a perfect substance, it is found that the juice of grape fruit is even better.

Homeless Children Found Homes By State Social Service

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 18 (CNB)—The State of California in its capacity as fairy godmother found permanent homes for nearly one thousand homeless babes during the past year, according to a statement issued by Mrs. Anna L. Saylor, director of the Department of Social Welfare, which has jurisdiction over all adoptions.

While all requests for blue-eyed blonde baby girls can not be filled, nevertheless, the state aims to improve upon the haphazard methods of the old Stork and take in to consideration foster parents preferences for boy or girl babies

PROPOSED CHANGE IN SCHOOL ELECTION MEETS OPPOSITION

By ESTO BROUGHTON

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 18 (CNB)—To elect, or not to elect the school head:

Whether it is nobler in the state to suffer the deadlocks and conflicts of a two-headed school system; or to take ballot against choosing the scholastic head and by one "X-ed," Yes, end it!

That is the question which is confronting the voter on ballot amendmest No. 6, providing for a long-term appointive board of education, which in turn will appoint the State Superintendent of Public Instruction now elected directly by the people.

And it is a question upon which the school authorities themselves are not agreed.

William John Cooper, the present superintendent of schools, enthusiastically favors the amendment, claiming, "it will take the schools out of politics." In support of his claim that the system of popular election does not call educational leaders to the head of the state school system, Cooper points out that in the past doctors clergymen and politicians had held the office, with only here and there a trained aducator.

On the other hand, W. W. Hanlon county superintendent of schools in Contra Costo county, who has taken the field against the amendment claims that it will not put the school out of politics, but that it will take them further out from the control of the public.

The San Francisco High School Teachers Association, in a bulletin protesting against Ballott Amendment No. 6, declare this amendment will cause the entire public school system of the State of California to be a part of the political machinery of the successful candidate in a gubernatorial election."

In answer to this attack, Sam Cohn, deputy superinendent of schools in Contra Costa county, this organiaztion is not a truly representative teachers association but merely a campaign committee. In addition, Cohn points out the mechanical impossibility of any governor, getting control of the proposed board of education unless he is re-elected because of the long terms of the new 10-member board.

State Road Money Divided Between North and South

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 18 (CNB)—Caprices of weather in California may dictate fluctuations of highway building activities between the North and the South, but allocations of funds by the state highway commission remain fixed and invariable, study of progress made during the first year and a quarter of the 1928-29 biennium indicates.

Allotments to date of funds which the commission has at its disposal have been made in precise accordance with the Breed law, that inflexible division of road moneys set by the legislature which gives 54.7 per cent of the state highway maintenance funds to that portion of California north of the Tehachapi and the remaining 45.3 per cent to the eleven southern counties. The division is made from gas tax revenues accruing to the state and set aside for road building.

Allotments from this fund to the north to date have been $5,901,996.04 and to the south $4,301,454.38, B. B. Meek, director of the department of public works disclosed today.

"Because of the necessity, for economic reasons of working in the North, during the summer months and in the southern area to a great extent in the winter, our work planned for the southern counties during the next few months will materially increase our obligations there," said Meek, "and will result in an exact balance as per the Breed law requirements by the end of the biennial period."

Moving the crops of California through statewide financing

CALIFORNIA'S vast crop movement—including fresh and dried fruits, vegetables, nuts, grains and cereals (as well as shipments of live stock, poultry and dairy products)—must be generously financed at the proper time, to protect the ranchers against loss that may result from delayed marketing. The Bank of Italy, with its great reservoir of loanable funds, furnishes to California agriculturists a service that is unequalled in financing the marketing and distribution of every type of farm product. Prosperity requires a statewide banking organization—large enough to meet every legitimate need of business, broad-minded enough to understand the problems of both the big and small grower, and with courage enough to back its judgment with dollars. The Bank of Italy supplies—and will continue to supply—the kind of financing that California needs.

STROPPING IS ESSENTIAL TO THE PERFECT SHAVE

a Million Boosters say it's GREAT

The Million Dollar
Valet AutoStrop Razor demonstrates the necessity of stropping before each shave

Because it solves the problem of men with stubborn beards, the new Valet AutoStrop Razor is taxing our factories' capacity to meet America's demand.

Everywhere wise men are turning to the new Valet AutoStrop Razor because it is teaching them the vital importance of never shaving with a blade that has not been properly stropped.

All barbers know that until it is stropped the cutting edge of every blade is a row of tiny needle points that scrape and tear the skin. Stropping smooths them out.

With the automatic self-stropping device of the Valet AutoStrop Razor you can do this in a few seconds. And the new model offers you many other modern features exclusive in this razor. It is the result of 21 years of experiment and the expenditure of a million dollars.

Both the razor and the blades have been distinctly bettered. Made of the costliest steel, treated by the exclusive Valetite process, Valet blades have a perfect edge. The self-stropping feature keeps them so. New type guard gives you full use of the shaving surface of these keener blades. Instantly inserted or removed by pressing a button. Locked in a firm non-flexible grip, they put blade vibration and razor pull out of the picture for good. No need to remove the blade to strop and clean it.

Try this new Million Dollar Razor. You'll quickly learn to like it. And once you know its soothing shaves and friendly angle, you'll stick to it for life.

Beautifully finished models complete with blades and an improved strop in handsome cases at $1.00 to $25.

Radio Wedding Was the "Real Thing"

There was a genuine radio wedding at the Radio World's fair in New York, the happy couple being married by Dr. Clarence J. Harris, who read the service from a suite in the Hotel Astor. This photograph shows, left to right, Jessie Simpson, bride; Lita Korbe, radio queen of 1928 and maid of honor at the wedding, and Robert W. Philipson, groom, looking at their novel wedding cake. The cake was made around a radio set and loud speaker that actually works.

STARTING EARLY

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

I believe it was Frank who organized the baseball team among the boys of his community when he was thirteen and who captained it. He began to show leadership very early. He was the first to start playing marbles in the spring, and the most enthusiastic, and he opened up the work in football among the juniors in the fall. Athletically Frank got an early start.

I believe, too, that he was president of the organization which opened up the soft drink emporium on the vacant lot across from his house. The parlor consisted of a store box fenced about with narrow boards covered with gay tissue paper. Frank acted as treasurer, also, having pretty largely financed the enterprise at the beginning, bringing in the other fellows as they were able to furnish business or financial aid. He told me that the business flourished during the heated months. As the weather grew cooler in the fall, the soft drink parlor was metamorphosed into a news stand. It was an early start in business administration, but I am sure that this beginning will have its beneficial effects twenty years from now upon Frank's business efficiency. He has learned how to organize a business, how to buy economically, and how to save and invest his money.

It is in church that Frank has attracted my attention most. He sits in the same pew every Sunday, alert and attentive. He seems to understand what the minister is saying even when it is more fully applicable to older persons than to himself. I never see him laughing and carrying on a whispered conversation with the other boys during the service. He keeps his mind on what is being said. He is reverent and serious looking. He follows the responsive reading, he takes part in the singing, he bows his head during the prayer—in fact he plays the religious game as seriously and as enthusiastically as he goes in for athletics and business.

Some day Frank is likely to be the best athlete in school because he has a good body and he has interest in physical development and physical skill, and he is learning how to develop these to the best advantage. I would not be surprised if, when he got to college, he went in for a business training, for even now he seems to be developing a keen business sense. He is making his own spending money and every Sunday I notice that, when the collection plate is passed, he drops in his weekly contribution.

I am sure that twenty years from now he will be a leader in the church, for the religious habits which he is so early forming, he will not be able to break. He will be president of the board of trustees very likely. When there is need of raising money to build a new church or to add to the old one it will be Frank who will be called on to manage things. There is nothing like beginning early.

Hunting Season in Full Swing

This Little Girl Got Well Quick

"Just after her third birthday, my little daughter, Connie, had a serious attack of intestinal flu," says Mrs. H. W. Turnage, 227 Cadwalder St., San Antonio, Texas. "It left her very weak and pale. Her bowels wouldn't act right, she had no appetite and nothing agreed with her.

"Our physician told us to give her some California Fig Syrup. It made her pick up right away, and now she is as robust and happy as any child in our neighborhood. I give California Fig Syrup full credit for her wonderful condition. It is a great thing for children."

Children like the rich, fruity taste of California Fig Syrup, and you can give it to them as often as they need it, because it is purely vegetable. For over 50 years leading physicians have recommended it, and its overwhelming sales record of over four million bottles a year shows it gives satisfaction. Nothing compares with it as a gentle but certain laxative, and it goes further than this. It regulates the stomach and bowels and gives tone and strength to these organs so they continue to act normally, of their own accord.

There are many imitations of California Fig Syrup, so look for the name "California" on the carton to be sure you get the genuine.

Rabbit

The old trick of lighting fires under stubborn mules and affixing sugar loaf to a pole just ahead of the horse's nose find a modern counterpart in the increasingly popular sport of dog racing where decoy rabbits speeded ahead by electric trolleys lure greyhounds to lightning speed.

A Household Blessing

Care of Tuberculosis

New York.—A survey recently completed by the National Tuberculosis association showed that New York state leads the country in the number of public, semiprivate and private sanitariums for the cure of tuberculosis, with California ranking second. This state has a total of 9,498 beds while California has 4,451.

The growth in institutions for tuberculosis cases has increased greatly during the last twenty-four years. In 1904 there were less than 8,000 beds devoted to the care of the tuberculosis.

Today there are 72,723 beds in 608 public, semiprivate and private tuberculosis sanitariums. This includes Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Phillipines and 44 federal sanitariums containing 12,320 beds.

It is estimated that 200,000 persons are cared for yearly.

Every state in the United States, except Idaho, Nevada and New Mexico, maintains public institutions for combating the disease. Idaho and Nevada make absolutely no provision, public or private, for the tuberculous, the report indicates.

Dr. Linsly R. Williams, managing director of the National Tuberculosis association, characterized the analysis as "most illuminating" and declared:

"Despite the fact that there has been an increase of 750 per cent in the facilities for the care of the tuberculous in the past twenty-four years, improved methods and the increasing desire of the public to learn the truth about its physical condition brings to light more cases of tuberculosis than can be taken care of by existing sanitariums.

"Four states on the list have only one sanitarium each, but the fact that they are all publicity supported is an encouraging sign that the citizens and officials of those states have begun to realize the importance of providing protection against tuberculosis, which still kills more persons between the ages of eighteen and forty-five than any other disease.

Makes Life Sweeter

Children's stomachs sour, and need an anti-acid. Keep their systems sweet with Phillips Milk of Magnesia!

When tongue or breath tells of acid condition—correct it with a spoonful of Phillips. Most men and women have been comforted by this unique sweetener—more mothers should invoke its aid for their children. It's a pleasant thing to take, yet neutralizes more acid than the harsher things too often employed for the purpose. No household should be without it.

Phillips is the genuine, prescriptional product physicians endorse for general use; the name is important. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. registered trade mark of the Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

Weird Noises Are Laid to Pirate Spooks

Elizabeth City, N. C.—Two hundred years ago, the children would have whispered "pirates" when doors slammed mysteriously at night on Church's island. Today the grown ups shout "spooks."

George Brice, who with his family lives in a frame house on the island has brought word to the mainland that strange noises, as of heavy weights dropping, or of a woman shrieking, come at intervals from the walls of his home.

Brice is a fisherman, staid in appearance. Mrs. Brice and the children corroborate the story as told by the husband.

The noises are said to occur in broad daylight or in the wee hours before dawn. The entire family has been aroused by moans and gurgles emanating sometimes from the attic, again from the cellar. Search after search has failed to show a natural cause, Brice claims.

Recently word of the strange happenings spread to the mainland and scores each Sunday go by boat to the island, which is steeped with traditions as a pirate rendezvous, and visit the house.

The coast of North Carolina near here 150 years ago was a favorite gathering place for buccaneers. They hove their swift ships to in the inlets and sailed out at night to raid shipping along the coast.

DIPPING INTO SCIENCE

New Plating Process

Although it has long been possible to use most metals—such as gold, silver, nickel, etc.—for plating purposes, it was not until this year that a process for plating aluminum was perfected. Aluminum is the most resistant of all metals to chemical and natural corrosion, therefore this new discovery is very important to industry. The process was perfected by University of Illinois chemists.

Research in Flight Senses Being Planned

St. Louis, Mo.—Plans for a $1,000,000 eye, ear, nose and throat hospital to be erected for the Washington university school of medicine here, include a "Lindbergh pavilion," to be devoted to medical research in aviation.

Dean W. McKim Marriott of the school of medicine, who announced the plans, said: "The new science of aviation is calling for a great deal of investigation in such subjects as the sense of equilibrium of the aviator, the judgment of distance of the pilot and his power to adapt his vision quickly and accurately to conditions of light and dark.

"Individuals differ greatly in these particulars and it is evident that something more than a desire to fly should constitute the requirements of an aviator. These are some of the problems upon which the workers of the proposed institute will be engaged," he said.

Tragedy in Reunion

New York.—Shocked by realization that the boy whom she regarded as her twin brother was in reality no relation at all, and that his own true brothers and sisters had suddenly appeared to displace her in his affections, Jessica Hart Trogan, twenty-two, of Freeport, L. I., has disappeared from her home, leaving no clew to her whereabouts.

Her "brother," William Hart, recently told the curious story, a story that has kept their neighbors excited ever since Jessica's disappearance.

"It all started in Camden, N. J.," said Hart. "Three families were living there, the Stricklands, the Furnesses and the Harts. I was the youngest of the Furness family, and when I was six years old my mother died. During the funeral preparations my father decided to intrust me to the care of the Harts, an elderly couple who had always been his friends.

"I was to stay there only a week, but just before my mother's burial the Harts suddenly left for Nashville, Tenn., where Jessica and I were brought up as their children till we were fourteen years old. Jessica and I were then taken back to Camden, always believing we were brother and sister, though knowing we were adopted.

"Meanwhile the Furnesses had moved to Philadelphia, so I never knew who my real parents were. When the war came I enlisted, though only seventeen years old. Jessica had meantime been married. Her husband was a pilot of a Standard Oil company plane in South America, but he was killed just a week later, and both the Harts died just after the Armistice.

"We then went to live in Freeport with Mr. and Mrs. Bergstrum, who were old friends of the Harts. Jessica helped with the housework and I got odd jobs. Then about a month ago I wrote to Mr. Strickland, asking him to get a job in his silk business. He happened to show it to an elderly woman who knew the Furnesses and Harts in Camden. She knew my family had always been looking for me and she wrote them in Philadelphia.

"A few days later a Mrs. Sue Potter, my real sister, wrote me and asked me to come and visit her for a week in North Philadelphia. I was awfully surprised, of course, but I told Jessica and together we motored down to Mrs. Potter's house.

Hart described the reception he received from his family, which included another sister, Mrs. Mary Rotz, and his brothers, George and Edward. He said that Jessica grew more and more uncomfortable during the welcome and finally fainted "dead away." He said he tried to comfort her, but he couldn't help making a fuss over his new family.

"Gosh!" he said, "blood will tell, you know. I just couldn't help liking them, and even on the way back Jessica wouldn't sit beside me once."

The week after his return from Philadelphia Jessica disappeared. Then she sent him a card from Freeport, saying that she was going to Geneva, N. Y. Hart characterized this as a bluff, because, he said, he was sure she knew no one there.

Hart said he would change his name to Furness. When asked about his future plans, he said he didn't know.

"I'm going in search of Jessica, if she doesn't show up soon. Meanwhile, I'll stick to my job."

Russians Use Rats to Exterminate Rats

Moscow.—Rat eating rats are being bred in Leningrad. Thirty pairs of rats were put in thirty cages, and for a long period given no food. In some cases one member of the pair then ate the other. These rat-eating rats were then in turn paired, until by process of elimination several super rat-eating rats were developed. Breeding was then begun with these ravenous monsters as a base. The idea is to develop a system of self rat extermination. Rats are a serious problem in Leningrad, 2,000,000 being there; and many methods of extermination are being tried. The loss to Leningrad through destruction by rats is estimated at $2,500,000 annually. Rat extermination centers have been formed in 220 co-operative stores, ninety-six factories, ten storehouses, three markets and thirty-eight other establishments. And now the rat-eating rat is to be let loose on his brethren.

The RED LAMP

THE STORY

Events of the story as set forth in the journal of William A. Porter, professor of English literature:

The professor's uncle, Horace Porter, died mysteriously at his home, Twin Hollows, now the professor's property. Jane, the professor's wife, is a psychic. She insists Uncle Horace, dead for a year, had attended his class reunion and produces a snapshot to prove her contention. Professor Cameron, interested in psychical research, inclines to the idea of psychic photography. With their niece, Edith, the Porters go to Twin Hollows for their vacations, despite Jane's reluctance. A letter Horace had been writing at the time of his death shows that he was interested in spiritualism. It hints of danger. A "red lamp" is mentioned. They take up their residence in the lodge, because of Jane's aversion to the house. Warren Halliday, in love with Edith, comes to live in the boathouse. A number of sheep are mysteriously killed in the vicinity. The slayer leaves a cabalistic sign at the scene of the killings. Greenough, a detective, arrives and Porter has a feeling that he is under suspicion. Twin Hollows is rented to an elderly, partially paralyzed man, Bethel, who, with his secretary, Gordon, takes possession.

It is indicative of the whole situation, I think, that he lighted the flash. He was no longer lurking in the dark, waiting for the motor boat to drive the marauder ashore. That marauder, in the shape of a shivering professor of English literature, slightly unbalanced mentally, was before him.

Greenough was frankly puzzled. He had, one perceives, a problem on his hands. He wanted Carroway to come in and identify me, for without that identification he was helpless. And somewheres out on the water was Carroway, possibly with a stalled engine. He put his hands to his mouth and called:

"Hi! Bob!" he yelled. "Bob."

But there was no answer, except that Halliday came running out and asked what the trouble was. Greenough was thoroughly irritated; he lapsed into a sulky, watchful silence, and offered no objection when I shiveringly suggested that I go back to my bed. I left them both there, Halliday preparing to row out and locate the launch if possible, and came back to the Lodge.

This morning I learn that Carroway's boat was found by Greenough who had a fast launch with a search light, at one o'clock this morning, drifting out with the tide and about two miles from land. It was empty, and no sign of young Carroway was found. As it trailed no dory, our mystery has apparently become a tragedy.

And I am under suspicion. I have put that down, and sitting back have stared at it. It is true. And suppose what I am expecting at any moment take place, and Greenough comes into the drive, to confront me with the damnable mass of evidence he has put together, the circle enclosing the triangle; the fact that the sheep-killing did not commence until after our arrival at the Lodge; the night Morrison, driving his truck-load of produce, saw me on the road; and most of all, with last night!

Suppose I tell him the actual fact? That my wife has some curious power, and that in obedience to it she last night aroused me from a virtuous sleep, to tell me she had clairvoyantly seen a man taking a boat from our float, and that I must immediately go down; that there was, she felt, something terribly wrong? Suppose I told him that, which is exactly the fact? And also that, once there, I found that Edith had left the canoe in the water, and that I had, like the careful individual I am, drawn it up out of harm's way? Will he believe that? I wonder—

Quite aside from my unwillingness to drag Jane into this, particularly as the possessor of a faculty which she herself only reluctantly reveals even to me, is my conviction that such a story, soberly told, would only increase Greenough's suspicion of my sanity.

And as if to add to the precariousness of the situation, Halliday himself in all innocence has added another damning factor; gave it, indeed, to the detective last night.

Yesterday, it appears, in repairing the float, he found a new and razor-sharp knife between the top of one of the barrels and the planks which made the flooring.

"I didn't tell you, Skipper," he says, "because I was afraid of alarming you. And, of course, there might have been some simple explanation. Starr might have dropped it, during his carpentering."

He was first amused and then infuriated by the web which seems to be closing around me.

"Of course they can't do anything," he says, "unless they catch you in the act."

But the unconscious humor of that statement set me laughing, and after a moment he saw it and grinned sheepishly. "You know what I mean," he said. "And in one way, if you can stand it, it's not a bad thing."

Pressed for an explanation, it appears that he had been thinking of going after the reward himself, and that this matter of Carroway has decided him.

"Reward or no reward," he said, quietly, "I've had a bit of training; they put me in the Intelligence in Germany, during the occupation. And of course the way to catch a criminal is to keep him from knowing who's after him. Then again, if he learns the police are watching you—and he may—he's watching them, you know—it may make him a bit reckless. You never can tell."

But he has a third reason, although he has not mentioned it. He is chivalrously determined to protect me, and through me, Edith.

July 7.

Another day has gone by, and I am still at large. Free, I suppose in order that I may eventually again sally forth, some dark night, with my piece of chalk and another knife—for has not Greenough my original one?—to kill more sheep; if indeed there be any remaining for slaughter; or to stab and throw overboard another hapless boatman.

The plain truth is that I am sadly upset. Even what before seemed a plain and obvious duty, to go to the other house tonight and tell Mr. Bethel on his arrival the exact situation, has been all day a matter for most anxious thought. It had seemed quite simple before. I would say to him: "Sir, I have rented you this house. True, I warned your secretary of certain unpleasant qualities it is supposed to have, but I must also warn you. The building is reported to be haunted. I do not believe this, nor I daresay will you, but I feel that I must tell you."

Or again:

"There is also a popular—or unpopular—idea that some recent sheep-killings around the vicinity are somehow connected with this haunting. The police do not think so, but the more ignorant of the natives do. If this alarms you, I am prepared to pay back your money to you."

Not quite in this fashion but with a similar candor, I have been prepared to clarify my relations with my new tenant. But now what happens? Will Greenough, for instance, credit my entire disinterestedness? Will he not rather believe that I have given but one more evidence of my essential lunacy? Would I not myself, only a few weeks ago, have distrusted any individual who came to me with such a tale?

After all, I have told young Gordon. At least I have that to my comfort if anything happens . . . .

I have seen Bethel, and I have not told him. He gives me every impression, in spite of his infirmity, of being able to look after himself, and after tonight's experience he is welcome to do so. Let him have his raps and his footsteps; let him find his tea-kettle on the floor, and his faces in the pantry. Let him freeze in cold airs or stew in his own juice. I have done my part.

His car drove in at eight-thirty, and I followed it along the drive. True to her agreement, Annie Cochran had only waited until seven and then had taken a firm departure, and I daresay this threw him into the execrable temper in which I found him. The secretary had assisted him into the house, and I found him in the library, with only one lamp going, huddled in a chair among a clutter of wraps, and introduced myself. He barely acknowledged it.

"Where the devil's the servant?" he barked at me. "I thought there was a woman, or somebody."

"There is a very good woman," I said, "but she goes home before dark. That is," I corrected myself, "she leaves early. I told your secretary that."

"Do you suppose she's left a fire? Gordon!" he called. "Go and see if there's a fire. I want some hot water."

He fumbled in a pocket and brought out what I fancy was a beef cube or some similar concoction, and sat with it in his hand.

"Which way does the house face?" he asked, suddenly.

"East. Toward the bay."

"Then I want a back room. Don't like the morning sun. Don't like anything in the morning," he added, and peered up at me through his spectacles.

Young Gordon returned then with a cup of hot water and a spoon, and Mr. Bethel favored me with little or no further attention. He has but one usable hand, and the secretary held the cup while he stirred the tablet in it. Only once did he favor me with direct speech during this proceeding. He glanced up as I stood—he had not asked me to sit down—and said:

"Been having some sheep-killing around here lately, haven't you?"

I may have flushed slightly, but I doubt if he could see it, although his eyes were on me. "Yes," I admitted.

"Saw it in the papers," he said, and went back to his broth.

Then if ever was my time to plunge, but to save my life I could not do it. That truculent, childish old man, one leg stretched out before him in the relaxation of partial paralysis, one hand contracted in his lap with the tonic spasm of his condition, taking soup under the direction of a pasty-faced boy who grinned at me above his white head, was no recipient of such information as I had to give. And he allowed me no further opportunity; the cup empty, he indicated that he wished to go upstairs, and with a nod in my direction he shuffled out, Gordon supporting him on the infirm side.

I followed them to the foot of the stairs, and part way up, pausing for breath, he must have suspected my presence there for he turned and looked down.

"What do you think is behind this sheep-killing?" he said. Just that. Not good-night. Nothing whatever about the house; nothing about my presence or my approaching departure. "Who's killed them?" he rasped.

"Some maniac, probably."

"A maniac!" he barked, and steadying himself by Gordon, twisted around so he could see me the better. "Religious tomfoolery, eh? The Blood of the Lamb!"

He cackled drily, staring down at me. Then he turned, without another word, and went on up and out of my sight.

July 8.

I am, I am convinced, under espionage. Old Thomas is too frequently in view, as he patters around his daylight tasks, and tonight I have a distinct impression that some observer who takes an interest in my movements is outside, watching my window. Jock believes this also. He is restless, moving from the passage into my room and back again, and twice, standing near me, the short ruff on the back of his neck has risen.

Halliday brought me today further details about Carroway's disappearance:

"The hotel clerk ran down to the piers," he says, "and he heard the engine going for some time. The boat didn't start up the beach, but out into the bay, as if Carroway felt the other man had a good start of him, and was trying to cross the bay. Then he either lost the sound of the engine, or it stopped.

"He waited on the slip for a half hour or so and then went back to the hotel. Greenough came in about that time and called up Starr, and they went together to the town slip. But Carroway hadn't shown up, and after a time Greenough decided to go out after him.

"They found the boat pretty well out in the bay—the tide was going out—and empty. They looked around, as well as they could, then Starr got into it and brought it back. But here's the part they're not telling: Peter Geiss says Greenough got some waste and wiped something off the top of the engine box."

"He didn't see what it was?"

"They wouldn't let him near the boat, but he says it was the circle again."

Of any other details there are apparently none. Bob Carroway has apparently gone the way of all flesh, poor lad. And while Greenough or some emissary of his watches me from my own drive, the murderer is perhaps concocting some further devilry.

In the meantime a veritable panic has, according to Halliday, seized the countryside, and of this we have certain evidence ourselves. The road beyond the Lodge gates, usually a procession of twin lights, is tonight dark and silent. No motor boats with returning picnic parties rumble across the water, throwing us now and then a bit of song. The fishermen, starting out at three in the morning, are going armed and in fear of their lives. And each man suspects the other.

Jane's attitude these days is curious. She is quite convinced, for instance, that she had a premonition of Carroway's death the night she sent me to the slip. As she has no idea that this premonition of hers may be most unpleasant in its consequences to me, today I got her to talk about it.

"Just how did it come?"

"I don't know. I had been asleep, I think. Yes, I know I had. I wakened, anyhow, and I seemed to be looking at the slip. There was somebody there, kneeling."

"Kneeling? Saying his prayers, you mean?" with a recollection of the altar.

"I think he was feeling for something, under the float."

There is a certain circumstantial quality to this, one must admit. He had been seen and was being followed, and his knife for some reason was still where he had left it. Or rather, it was not there, since Halliday had that day found it and taken it away. Had it not been for that, poor Carroway might have met his end there on our slip, and not later. But the knife was gone, and there was nothing left but flight.

Just where that flight began no one can say. It seems incredible that he had left his boat moored directly below our boat-house, with Halliday so close at hand. It seems more likely that he ran up the beach a way, and that—well, de mortuis nil nisi bonum. Perhaps I am wrong, but it seems to me that Carroway could more easily have followed him by one of the row boats from our slip, than follow the method he did, with the loss of time involved.

Still, I myself would not have started out unarmed after a killer, even of sheep, unless I had first raised the alarm and was fairly sure of assistance to follow.

"But I don't see," I said to Jane, "why you felt that there was anything ominous in this dream of yours, or whatever it was."

"I never have them without a reason."

There may be one comfort to the superstitious in all this; not once, since the night when we lighted the red lamp in the pantry, has it—

Midnight: I have just had rather a curious experience, and I am still considerably shaken.

I had no more than written the above words when I glanced out the window, and distinctly saw a small red light through the window of the den in the main house.

My first thought, so certain was I that the lamp was carefully hidden in the attic, was of fire. Long before I had seen Mr. Bethel's light, in the room above it, go out, and soon after that young Gordon's had been likewise extinguished.

I went quickly to my window and leaned out. So dark is the night that it hangs outside like an opaque curtain, and as the light almost immediately disappeared, I was left staring into this void, when suddenly Jock on the staircase landing gave vent to an unearthly howl.

The next moment I heard, under the trees and toward the house the short dry cough of cardiac asthma, and smelled the queer unmistakable odor of Uncle Horace's herbal cigarette.

I have reasoned with myself for the last ten minutes or so. All the evidence is against me; Greenough may be watching me, or having me watched, and some poor devil out under the trees is suffering from the night air. Or old Mr. Bethel, unable to sleep, has somehow dragged himself out for a midnight airing under the trees.

But I saw the lamp. And it is locked in the attic. I myself put it there, and at this moment have the key.

July 9.

I made an excuse this morning to Annie Cochran, and she slipped me up the kitchen staircase of the other house and so to the attic. The lamp was as I had left it and the closet locked, and today I am asking myself whether, with that curious lack of perspective one finds at night, I did not see instead of the lamp far away, the lighted end of a cigar close at hand.

Annie's report on my tenants is satisfactory on the whole. She doesn't much care for the secretary, but the old man's "bark is worse than his bite." He comes down in the morning, or is helped down, to his breakfast, and she cuts his food for him—he seems to dislike the boy's doing it—reads the paper and then goes to work.

"To work?" I asked. "What sort of work?"

"He's writing a book."

But it appears that he is writing it only in the nonliteral sense. He is dictating a book. And it also appears he has chosen this place because of its isolation, and Annie's orders are that he receives no visitors.

But it also appears that young Gordon is perhaps not as courageous as he made out to me when he came to look over the house, and that he has been "hearing things."

"What sort of things?"

"He didn't say. But he asked me this morning if I'd been in the house last night. 'If you find me here at night, it'll be because I'm paralyzed and can't move,' I said, 'and if you take my advice, you'll not go round hunting if you hear anything.'"

"That must have cheered him considerably."

"I don't know about that. He just looked at me and said, 'What's the game, anyhow? I'll bet a dollar you're in on it.'"

Edith has sprung a surprise on us all. I have noticed for a day or two that she has been taking a keen interest in the mail; yet Edith's mail, with Halliday here, is largely a matter of delicate paper and the large square handwriting of the modern young woman, and has dealt this summer largely with reports on house parties, summer resorts, and various young men who seem recognizable to her under such cognomens as Chick, Bud and Curley.

This morning, however, her mail included a business-like envelope, and she flung the white, rose and mauve heap aside and pounced on it. A moment later she got up and coming around the table to me, gravely kissed that portion of my head which is gradually emerging, like a shore on an ebb tide, from my hair.

"As one literary artist to another," she said, "I salute you." And placed before me a check for twenty dollars.

She has written a feature article on our sheep-killing and has sold it.

"And it took me only two hours," she says triumphantly. After that she was rather silent, computing, I dare say, how much she can earn, giving four hours a day to it for six days a week. At the rate, then, of ten thousand a year!

"Considerably more than I receive, Edith," I said gravely, and I saw I had been right by the way she started.

She set off at once for the boat-house, but came back later considerably crestfallen, and poured out her troubles to me.

"If he had anything he would give it to me," she wailed. "If I can write and make money—"

"You can't fight the masculine instinct, my dear, to support its woman; not be kept by her. Besides, have you considered this? You will not always find subjects as salable as this one has been."

"Subjects!" she said scornfully. "Why, this place is full of them."

The result of which has been on my part all day an uneasy apprehension as to what she will choose next. Nor am I made easier by a question she asked me just before dinner.

"What became of the Riggs woman?" she asked. "Do you suppose she's still around here?"

"I imagine not. Why?"

"I just wondered," she said, and wandered to that particular corner of the veranda from which she has a distant but apparently satisfactory view of the boat-house.

Checker Player "Trained"

John Cumming, an eighty-year-old checker player of Philadelphia, has ideas of his own about physical training for mental exertion. When he competed in a checker tournament in that city, he brought his trainer with him. After Cumming had disposed of his first opponent, the trainer went into action. He gave the octogenarian a sip of water and made him recline in his chair while his second fanned him with a hat. After each match the performance was repeated and each successive opponent proved easier picking. At the end of the tournament Cumming was fully able to step forward to receive the winner's cup.

There was 2,400 military engagements in the Civil war considered important enough to be identified by name.

"Death Chambers" in Old Colonial Homes

In the American colonies in the Eighteenth century the lugubrious custom prevailed of setting aside one room in spacious mansions for a "death chamber."

There was such a room in the massive, square-sided house of General Knox at Thomaston, Maine, before the building was demolished a few years ago. It was above the eastern dining room, and with but one window it was, indeed, dark and gloomy. The wall-paper was white with somber black figures and a deep mourning frieze. The Maine Daughters of the American Revolution, in seeking data concerning the old mansion, a duplicate of which is soon to be erected in Thomaston as a memorial museum to General Knox, have obtained a description of the room.

References to these rooms are meager in any writings pertaining to those earlier days. Yet in the more pretentious homes such chambers were nearly always set aside. Between deaths they were kept locked.

Blind Telephone Operator

Sixty-four years old and blind since birth, Mrs. Clara Raney has just completed her thirty-sixth year as telephone operator at the town of Melrose, near Delphos, Ohio. Seated in the tiny cottage in which she lives, Mrs. Raney pulls plugs and operates drops on her switchboard, and tells how easy these things are for her without her sight. Ability to distinguish a difference in the sound of the bells makes her job simple, she said.—Indianapolis News.

Elephant Farm Started

Experimental government elephant farms have been started in the Belgian Congo. One activity is the training of the animals to plow, it having been found that they can do so at one-fourteenth the cost of plowing by tractor. Baby mammals are taken from wild herds when from two to ten years old and taught by experienced men with the aid of elephants already trained. One elephant can plow about one and one quarter acres a day.

ATWATER KENT RADIO

you'd know it anywhere!

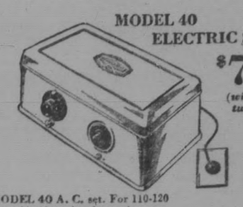
"DID you hear Hoover? What did you think of that speech of Smith's?"

Hear this historic campaign clearly through an Atwater Kent. You won't miss a word—a syllable. Atwater Kent tone is famous for clarity. Atwater Kent workmanship can be relied upon. Atwater Kent resources make prices low.

Electric or battery—your choice

Some homes have central-station electricity, some don't. Both kinds want fine radio. So Atwater Kent offers modern instruments in two forms.

With the all-electric set, you need no batteries. Your radio is operated in the same way your lamps are lighted—from the house current, either A. C. or D. C. The current costs considerably less than a cent an hour—about as much as reading a newspaper by the light of a single 40-watt lamp. Think of hearing Smith or Hoover for less than a cent!



MODEL 40 ELECTRIC SET $77 (without tubes)

MODEL 40 A. C. set. For 110-120 volt, 50-60 cycle alternating current. Requires six A. C. tubes and one rectifying tube, $77 (without tubes). Also Model 42, with automatic voltage regulator, $86 (without tubes), and Model 44, an extra-powerful "distance" set, $106 (without tubes).

With the all-battery set, you can set the programs will also come in clearly and strongly—whether you want speech or music—for the Atwater Kent name-plate on any set spells good, reliable reception.

Nearly 2,000,000 owners prove it

There's nothing untried about Atwater Kent Radio. Each year for six years it has set the pace in improvements, performance and price. Among rural families as well as in the cities, it is far and away the leader in sales and popularity. The nearest Atwater Kent dealer will be glad to give you a demonstration and advise you in the selection of your model.

On the air—every Sunday night—Atwater Kent Hour—listen in!

High School NOTES

The Sequoia basketball team split a double header with South San Francisco last Friday night in that city.

The 120-pound team won by a score of 17 to 6. These boys have not lost a league game, and have a good chance for the championship this year. In spite of the loss of Clarence Stillison, the 20's showed good form. Stillison is expected to be back in the game this Friday.

The 110-pound team lost by a score of 7 to 4. The boys played a fair game against their opponents.

The Cherokee Indians defeated San Jose Friday, October 12 by a score of 12 to 0.

The first touchdown was made by Burnet Dirks. Tom Shine, flashing quarter-back, passed to Dirks on the 35-yard line, it was received by Dirks on the 15-yard line and he ran for the first score.

Cordan Partee caught a pass during the last period of the game and ran for a touchdown. Both times the try for extra point was unsuccessful.

One of the first white children born in Redwood City, Mr. Chase Littlejohn, spoke to the assembly Thursday, during the half-hour period, on hunting sea otters in years gone by. Mr. Littlejohn is a scientist of note.

The faculty of the high school held a 'get-together' dinner Wednesday, October 10, at Happy Gardens. Fifty teachers attended the party.

Sequoia Girls' Society is holding a dance this Saturday in the Gym. All students are invited as well as any outsiders who care to attend, according to Anne Templeton, who is heading the committee. The decorations will follow the lines of a stable as it is to be a barn dance. Cider will be the refreshment served.

Rings for the junior class will be delivered October 26. The ring is heavy set, with the numerals "19" and "28" engraved on the shanks. Placed in the center is the Sequoia Seal.

O. M. Carrington's house was the scene of the Iota Zeta luncheon Thursday, October 11. The mebers met for their first party this year.

Busisess men and residents of Redwood City have been requested by the high school to save any boxes or other firewood for the rally bonfire, which is to be held for the football and basketball teams before the Palo Alto game.

More and more students have been signing up for the rooters clubs and by Friday night and Saturday, a hundred per cent attendance is expected at the basket- and football games. As a pupil signs up for the club he is given a song and yell pamphlet.

Two Vagrants Held For Investigation

Alex Stokes and Mike Nickers arrested by Chief of Police Mull of Atherton on Monday on a charge of vagrancy, are being investigated by San Francisco police in connection with automobile thefts in San Francisco. The two men were arrested by Chief Mull in a car whose ownership they could not satisfactorily explain.

WOODSIDE

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel C. Jackling and various members of their family are planning a long trip abroad. They will sail from New York for the Mediterranean on December 8th, and will spend the Christmas holidays in Egypt. In January, Mr. Jackling's new yacht the Cyprus, will be ready for sailing and the family will board her and sail for the east coast of Africa. They will travel on the yacht for eight or nine months.

Those in the party will be Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Jackling, Dr. and Mrs. Herbert Moffitt, Miss Alice Moffitt, Master Herbert Moffitt, Jr Dr. and Mrs. Herbert Allen, Miss Virginia Allen, and Master Herbert Allen, Jr.

The Jacklings will leave for New York the latter part of this month and will be joined by the other members of the party the latter part of November.

A very pleasurable and successful card party was given by the Parent-Teacher Association on Saturday night. Among the winners of prizes were Mrs. W. Ray and Mr. J. M. Williamson of Redwoo City and Mrs. E. Dudley and P. R. Brown of Woodside.

The first football contest of the season at the Woodside School grounds was had on Wednesday afternoon between the school teams of Portola and Woodside. The game resulted in a victory for Woodside with a score of 12 to 9.

The population of Woodside was increased by one this week when a baby girl came to live permanently with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Williamson. She weighed but 7 pounds on arrival but is expected to increase in weight as she becomes acclimated.

Although officially the season is closed, the Family Farm is not deserted. About twenty members came down for the last week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Ettore Avenali and family will return to San Francisco for the winter months. They will leave here the first of November.
